THE WINDOW AT ST. ANSELM'S CHAPEL, CANTERBURY CATHEDRAL.

THE sketch of this fine window, engraved above, was made during the visit last year of the Archaeological Association at Canterbury; it was done upon the suggestion of Professor Willis, who was at the time employed in examining the cathedral, and in drawing up the very valuable and interesting account of it, which he has since published. A small elevation of the head of the window complete is given in his book,—from which the following particulars respecting it are extracted:—

"In Anselm's Chapel, the original window of the south wall has been taken out and replaced by a very large and elaborate window of five lights, which is remarkable for its well-preserved history; this is contained in the following document, printed by Battely, from the archives:—

'Memorandum, that in the year 1336 there was made a new window in Christ Church, Canterbury, that is to say in the chapel of the
